Notes:

I expected this to be close to record values, and while it didn't pull out a record, it did very damn well when you consider there was hardly any warning (30 mins before) about stream start time. A near 4.5k average is spectacular, recording the highest figures since January even with a surprisingly early start, although it was to be expected with the Belle collab. I suspect the reason it didn't hit 4.5k average was because MCC was in the middle of the stream, and while it may not have had a major impact, I feel it took at least 20 viewers away which would have made the stream hit 4.5k. Nonetheless, an insane return to January levels for our boy Finn!
