Notes:

Well, there are 2 explanations for what happened here. The first one is that Finn gave virtually no warning of a stream happening, only notifying us less than 1 hour before stream started, which could have caused the lower than average viewers. Second one is that it is a Sunday at 8pm UK time which could end up being a lil too late for Europeans but this would only be a minor effect. Also, the reason I didn't take the average from both streams was because once again something happened mid stream that caused a restart and a notable drop in viewers compared to the first part. Overall, a slightly lower number but the lack of notice played a big part as well as the day and time playing minor parts.
