Notes:

I may end up classing this stream as a true anomaly akin to the New Year's Stream in the January stats. Finn would start at his latest time since said stream with only about an hour warning beforehand when many European viewers would be winding down to sleep despite it being a Saturday. This also probably contributed to the shorter stream length, being under 4 hours long which recently is a really low length. Overall I do have to give Finn credit, pulling about 700 viewers less than his average despite the scuffed nature of the stream time and warning is quite impressive, even if on paper it looks horrible. Adding context, you get a stream that still did well despite heavy circumstances against it.
